19-30 yo

Goli otok, Croatia

start: 21/07/2019
end: 28/07/2019

The island of Goli is located in the Kvarner archipelago in the north-eastern part of the Adriatic Sea in Croatia. It is known for its Yugoslavian past when it housed prison camp Goli Otok, almost since the beginning until the end of the political framework of SFRY.

Summer workshop has the goal of familiarizing the youth with the causes, consequences and ideological drive of the Yugoslavian totalitarian system and totalitarianism in general from different scientific perspectives.

Apart from the academic offer, an essential part of this programme is Ignatian spirituality by which the programme is inspired. The Holy Mass is an integral part of the stay at the island.

The project offers its participants an opportunity to stay in the central part of the camp. This includes the use of spaces built in the 1970s which are still viable for a camping style of stay. Therefore, the very conditions of the stay, which are an integral part of the programme, offer an opportunity for a better and deeper experience of the topic.

The programme is open for serious participants who want to spend one week on the island of Goli in this exposed framework.
